Rabbi's Message

Rabbi Elie Spitz

America: A Nation of Multiple Faiths

Tibor Rubin passed on December 7, 2015. He was a Jewish American hero, a recipient of the Medal of Honor. His is a story of survival, heroism, anti-Semitism and a reclaiming of American values. Born in a small town in Hungary, Tibor survived the Austrian, Mauthausen death camp. The Nazis murdered the rest of his family. Tibor recalled, "I promised the good Lord that if I get out of here alive, I'd become a GI Joe, to give back something." In 1948, he arrived as a refugee in the United States and tried to enlist, but was told that he needed to learn English first. He gained entry to the Army in 1950 and volunteered to fight in Korea.

"When Corporal Rubin's battalion found itself ambushed by thousands of Chinese troops," President George W. Bush stated, "the Americans' firepower soon dwindled to a single machine gun. The weapon was in an exposed position and three soldiers had already died manning it. That was when Corporal Rubin stepped forward. He fought until his ammunition was gone. He was badly wounded, captured and sent to a POW camp." His heroism continued during his thirty months as a North Korean prisoner. In his obituary in the NY Times, a fellow prisoner recounted how Tibor would sneak out to steal food, "He shared the food evenly among the GI's. He also took care of us, nursed us, carried us to the latrine. Helping his fellow men was the most important thing to him."

Fellow soldiers submitted multiple affidavits detailing Corporal Rubin's deeds, but the Sergeant responsible for filing a commendation, threw away those reports. This was the case for many Jewish soldiers. In 2002, Congress passed the Leonard Kravitz Jewish War Veterans Act, named for a soldier killed in an act of heroism that had been denied recognition due to anti-Semitism. President Bush asked for a review of the records of 137 Jewish veterans, which brought Tibor Rubin's to his attention and the subsequent awarding to him the Presidential Medal of Honor. Tibor Rubin was friends with congregants and attended several of our Shabbat services. I also visited with him and his son and daughter in Long Beach when Tibor was stricken by a stroke. It was an honor to know this giant of a man. His courage and care for others defines the best of who we are as a people.

As I write these words, another image of service to country comes to mind. During the Iraq War, Fareed Zakaria, the CNN news analyst, interviewed General Colin Powell. The previous week, General Powell had spoken at the grave of a Muslim soldier killed in battle. His gravestone was marked by a crescent, as a six-pointed star would mark that of a Jewish soldier. General Powell spoke of how America is the home of Muslims, too, who serve our country valiantly and pay the highest price. Fareed Zakaria is a Muslim born in India. He had tears in his eyes as he spoke of how important General Powell's message was for his own children.

As a nation of multiple faiths and as members of a minority faith, we have the opportunity to learn about and support each other's communities. I have invited an important Muslim leader in our community and my friend, Imam Siddiqui, to share a public conversation at CBI at 1pm on Saturday, February 6th. Imam Siddiqui was born in India, educated for the clergy in Saudi Arabia, England, and in the United States, where he earned a doctorate from Harvard Divinity School.

On September 11, 2001, Imam Siddiqui was in Washington, DC along with other Muslim leaders to meet with President Bush. After the tragedy of the attack on our homeland, that meeting was postponed and instead President Bush organized an interfaith gathering at the National Cathedral on September 14th. The Reverend Billy Graham preached. Prayers were recited in English, Hebrew, and Arabic. Imam Siddiqui represented the American Muslim community, sharing his prayer of consolation for our collective loss. When President Bush met with the Muslim leaders a few days later he said to them, as Imam Siddiqui recounted to me, "When a person shoots at an abortion clinic, we do not say that this was a Christian-hate crime. Likewise, we cannot condemn Islam for what some Muslims have done." Imam Siddiqui's mosque in Garden Grove is the oldest and largest in Orange County. He has served congregants from over 35 countries for over thirty years. He also teaches at Chapman University and speaks regularly at UCLA. Please join me on February 6th to learn more about Islam in America and how we can support another minority community in our great country. ☆

Bar Mitzvah of Steven Levine

January 9, 2016 (28 Tevet)

Steven attends Las Flores Middle School in Las Flores, and is in the GATE program. Steven enjoys playing Flag Football and this fall their team made it in the second place division. His hobbies are skiing in Mammoth, playing XBOX, reading and Airsofting with his friends. Steven's ongoing Mitzvah project involves collecting DVDs for KidsFlicks.org. This organization collects G, PG, and PG13 movies and distributes them to hospitals with pediatric wards to create a movie library for sick children. He will be sharing this special day with his family and friends.

Bar Mitzvah of Andrew Katz

January 16, 2016 (6 Shevat)

Andrew is in the 7th grade at Sierra Vista Middle School in Irvine. He enjoys all sports and loves to dance. He is a talented artist and plays the trumpet in his school band. He is active in USY and loves hanging out with his friends. Andrew has spent the last three years collecting and recycling bottles and cans and using that money to pay for food that is provided to Isaiah House in Santa Ana. During that time he has also cooked for and fed homeless people each Friday. Andrew has earned two Presidential Volunteer Service Awards and is working toward earning his third.

Bat Mitzvah of Natalya Levine

January 30, 2016 (20 Shevat)

Natalya began her Jewish education at the CBI Child Development Center when she was 21 months old and where she made some of her closest friends. She is currently very proud to be a 7th grader at Cerro Villa Middle School in Villa Park. She's worked extremely hard to maintain a 3.8 GPA which will allow her to become a member of the Honor Society in January. Natalya also showed her tremendous school spirit by becoming the top 7th grade seller in the school's fall fundraiser. Natalya loves cheer and tumbling, swimming, film making, arts & crafts, and being with her friends. Natalya volunteered with other teens at the Oak Canyon Nature Center for her Mitzvah Project where she helped to clean up the park and museum.

Natalya is thrilled to have her relatives and friends from around the US join with the CBI Community in helping her celebrate her coming of age in the Jewish Community.

Bat Mitzvah of Isabella Szabo

March 26, 2016 (16 Adar)

Isabella is an honors student at Tarbut V'Torah. She is also a dancer at West Coast School of the Arts. She studies ballet and jazz dance and competes as part of the West Coast Dance Club. She is also an accomplished singer and pianist. She has recently competed in the National Association of Teachers of Singing vocal competition. Isabella has worked very hard to raise money for Mercy House-- a local organization that helps homeless individuals and families find homes and resources to end their cycle of homelessness. She recently collected an SUV full of new household goods for homeless families moving into new housing. She also set up a lemonade stand to collect money for Mercy House.
