RABBI SPITZ'S MESSAGE

The Zohar: A Journey toward Freedom: Passover to Shavuot

At our Seders, we participate in a play. Before us are foods that remind us of shared pain. We eat bitter herbs until our eyes water; crunch the dry, stomach-filling matzah as slave food, and savor haroset, a mixed mash of fruit and nuts that reminds us of the mortar used by the builders of the pyramids. We celebrate a collective memory of when "God took us out of Egypt with an outstretched arm." Although we recline and enjoy a tasty meal and beloved company—whether in person or by zoom, we are invited to ask are we truly free?

For our sages, Pesach only began a journey toward freedom. Shackles are removed. Choice is offered. And yet, a count begins for 49 days. Erich Fromm, the great psychologist made a distinction between the "freedom from" Egypt and the "freedom to" of Mount Sinai, the destination of that count. He emphasized that we are defined by our commitments. At Mount Sinai in our collective memory we chose as a people to live in relationship with God, committing to live righteously and utilizing rituals to form bonds with each other and with the Divine. Passover leads to Shavuot, the celebration of receiving the Torah at Mount Sinai and entering into a communal commitment of living righteously before God.

At our Seders we echo words across generations, "Why is this night different than all other nights?" I hope we will arise at the end of the story-telling and fine dining feeling happy. Our sages say that a seder should begin in groaning as we recount our past slavery and lead to rejoicing over our freedom. And yet, as we leave the Seder, what will linger? In what sense have we taken our people's past as our own? In what ways are we renewing a journey toward a life of caring for those who are in need financially and emotionally? And in what ways—both ritually and in righteous deed—do we separate from the rhythms of the world around us to proclaim: "I am a Jew, pursuing righteousness and accepting duties of communal belonging."

I am reminded of the words of Elie Wiesel, "Modest acts of kindness are more significant than we recognize. It does not have to be newsworthy. You just need to look for the outstretched hand. You just need to touch one person every day with compassion." Judaism challenges us. The journey from Egypt to Sinai goes on. Each of us participates in that collective journey through our communal commitments and deeds of compassion, choices that define us and our true freedom. ☆

LOOKING FOR A WAY TO HELP DURING THESE DIFFICULT TIMES?

Sunday Supper has served thousands of weekly meals at St. Paul's since 2010. Participants are seniors, families with children, men, and women who live on the streets. For a few hours each Sunday, these people have a welcoming place to go, and during this time of Covid, a sack supper and groceries. CBI volunteers help on the 2nd Sunday of each month. To volunteer, contact Mindy at mindylcsw@aol.com or Michelle at xoxo@cox.net. For additional information on how you can help contact Sandy at SundaySupper@stpauls.org.

Family Promise of Orange County opened their doors 10 years ago and have served over 300 families experiencing homelessness. Donations of food and personal hygiene items are needed throughout the year. Volunteers can help in a variety of ways. April 28th is Help Them Home Giving Day. Join FP, as they partner with 18 other OC homeless service nonprofits during this 24 hour of online giving. To learn more about ways you can help, go to familypromiseorangecounty.org or call 714.787.3487.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

PHYLLIS ABRAMS

Sadly, this will be our second Passover that will find us detached from our family and friends. Our Seder, although equally as meaningful in a traditional sense, will continue to represent the resolve of our inner strength as a people, despite our unfortunate isolation from others due to the Covid virus. Historically, almost 80% of all Jews (affiliated and non-affiliated) attend a Passover Seder. Participation in a Passover Seder even exceeds attendance at Yom Kippur services, which is 62%, or lighting Shabbat candles, which is 28%. But the strength of our collective community is our spirit and determination, even if we are not physically together in prayer and worship.

This is a conflict on a global battlefield and the Covid pandemic is an unseen enemy in which only our battle scars are visible: isolation, anger, and death. But the obstacles that the Jewish people have weathered in the past are a clear illustration of our will and resolve.

Rabbi Kalonymus Shapira, writing from occupied Poland in 1940 discussed the Torah's description of God leading the people Israel out of Egypt as a "pillar of cloud during the day and a pillar of fire at night." The imagery here strongly suggests that worship and traditions need to be followed not only when our travels are smooth and rewarding but also when our struggles seem endless. If I could impart anything to you today it would be the feeling of optimism and hope.

Our traditional Jewish principles include that the preservation of life overrides almost any other duty. And a Seder is a religious duty, not just an opportunity to see extended family and enjoy holiday dishes. One reason why Passover is the quintessential Jewish Holiday is that you celebrate it by talking about it. As the Haggadah says, "everyone who discusses the exodus from Egypt is praiseworthy."

My husband and I frequently reminisce about sitting in Temple during Shabbat services, hugging our granddaughters, or the travel plans that had to be put on hold. Since we have both received vaccine injections we have actually gotten a hug from our granddaughters but we have come to the realization that tomorrow will never be quite like yesterday, and the way our day-to-day lives meandered through time. However, it is incumbent on us, at this very moment, to make sure that when the darkness of the virus begins to lift that the light on our path is bright.

Albert Einstein once said: "There are two ways to live. You can live as if nothing is a miracle or you can live as if everything is a miracle."

From my family to yours, we hope you had a Ziesen Pesach – a sweet and wonderful Pesach.

CHILD DEVELOPMENT CENTER

SHARON ALKIN, DIRECTOR

Most mornings, I begin my day with a walk around the preschool to say hello to the children and teachers. To get to the other side of the school, I walk through our outdoor environment. On my morning journey, I usually stop to look at the beautiful plants and flowers in the garden. Now, with everything blooming, it is evident that Spring is on the way. One can feel it in the air.

Each year, Monarch butterflies return to our garden sanctuary. They eat the leaves of the milkweed plants and lay their eggs, which then hatch as tiny caterpillars. The caterpillars explore and eat, growing larger preparing to transform into a chrysalis. A few weeks ago, some children spotted baby caterpillars munching on the milkweed leaves. Our Pre-K children named them Freddie, Teddie, and Cutie. Each day, the children ran outside, eager to discover how much the caterpillars had grown! The children were mindful when working in the outdoor environment and riding their bikes around the garden, knowing that the caterpillars sometimes crawl onto the cement. We overheard children gently reminding each other to watch out for the caterpillars.

Knowing that we share the environment with other creatures gives the children the opportunity to practice the Jewish value of Tza'ar Ba'alei Chayim, compassion towards animals. This is an important lesson for all of us: each living creature is deserving of kindness, patience, safety, and respect.

It wasn't long before the tiny caterpillars grew larger and soon we saw them hanging upside down, curled into a J-shape, beginning the process of becoming a pupa, enclosed in a chrysalis. The chrysalides are a magnificent jade color, with shiny gold spots along the top. After some time, the chrysalides become darker and if you look closely, you can see the outline of the wings inside. Soon, the beautiful black and orange wings of the butterfly are clearly visible, and within hours, the butterfly emerges. The butterfly then hangs upside-down, as its new wings unfold and dry, flapping slowly, getting stronger preparing to take flight. What an amazing sight it is to behold as you witness a butterfly fly for the very first time!

Spring brings a sense of hope and symbolizes new beginnings. We too, like the Monarch butterflies, are emerging from our chrysalides of the past year, opening and spreading our wings, getting stronger as we prepare for our next adventures here at the preschool.

I wish you all a happy and healthy Spring season!

Enrollment is now open for the 2021-2022 school year. Please call me at (714) 730-0860 to schedule a tour.

Bat Mitzvah of Melissa Maya Marzouk

April 17 (5 Iyar)

Melissa is a seventh grader at TVT. Her favorite subjects in school are math and English. Her hobbies include playing soccer, watching and creating TikToks, and hanging out with her friends. She is also an avid baker, and her specialties include challah (of course), chocolate souffles and chocolate chip cookies. For her Mitzvah Project, Melissa intends to volunteer with her family for a Sunday Supper program event through CBI. Melissa's family is incredibly proud of her hard work, dedication, and great attitude in preparing for her upcoming Bat Mitzvah.

Bar Mitzvah of Jonathan Groner

May 29 (18 Sivan)

Jonathan spent his joyful early years at CBI CDC. He continues his Jewish education now as a 7th grade honor student at Tarbut V'Torah in Irvine. Jonathan is surrounded by a great circle of school friends. His favorite academic classes are science and math. He also enjoys playing bass guitar in his school garage-band. Jonathan participates in multiple sports, his favorites being basketball and baseball. During the pandemic, he also took up tennis. He is an avid reader and writer and likes learning computer programming. In his free time, Jonathan enjoys trips to the beach with friends and hanging out with his brothers and his puppy, Karma. Jonathan is excited to celebrate his simcha with his family and friends!

YOUTH PROGRAMMING

EMILY FISCHER, DIRECTOR

Shalom, Everyone!

A huge thank you to everyone involved with our Purim CAR-nival. We are so thankful for all of our sponsors, volunteers, and participants. Together, we brought together a festive celebration for our families. It was truly a gift to see our community together, in person (and safely!), for the first time since last March.

We have more fun-filled virtual events coming up! All of the dates are listed to the right.

Stay up-to-date on our latest and greatest through our Instagram, @CBIUSY and our website, cbiusy.com. Don't forget to register for text reminders and links through Remind101. Text @CBIUSY to 81010. Looking forward to seeing everyone in person soon and online even sooner.
